Actually, you were not correct. On July 28, you said this, which is what prompted me to respond (after someone pointed it out to me and I came back to the newsgroup this week after my lengthy absence):

But instead it turned out that it was just me not being together enough to moderate for an extended period of time. So, not "actually correct"; instead, actually incorrect.

And by the way, I barely can handle just the step-by-step moderation process: I wouldn't have clue one how to "just dump" any message. I can bounce a message, but if I do that, you will get a reason emailed to you. Automatically. As I've said before.
