NNNNnnnnnnnooooooo.....!!!!

Looks like the worthless fool will be flushing another "Star" franchise down the toilet. :-(

From ComingSoon.net ...

BREAKING: J.J. Abrams to Direct Star Wars: Episode VII!

Star Trek Into Darkness helmer J.J. Abrams will direct Star Wars: Episode VII for Walt Disney Pictures and Lucasfilm, reports TheWrap. The site says that Ben Affleck was also in contention.

Back in November, Abrams commented on the possibility of him directing and it sounded like it wasn't happening:

"Look, Star Wars is one of my favorite movies of all time.

opportunity for whomever it is to direct that movie, it comes with the burden of being that kind of iconic movie and series. I was never a big Star Trek fan growing up, so for me, working sacrilege, and so, I am looking forward more than anyone to the next iterations of Star Wars, but I believe I will be going as a paying moviegoer!"

TheWrap adds that Lucasfilm's Kathleen Kennedy has been courting Abrams for the director's chair for a while.

Star Wars: Episode VII is scheduled to hit theaters in 2015. Michael Arndt is writing the script. Disney and Lucasfilm are planning a new trilogy with a new movie coming every other year.

A couple of good quotes from around the Internet ...

"I have a bad feeling about this."

"I felt a great disturbance in the Force... as if millions of fans suddenly cried out in terror and were suddenly kicked in the teeth. I fear something terrible has happened."

Another good quote ...

"Sir, the possibility of successfully handing over an entertainment franchise is approximately three thousand, seven hundred and twenty to one!"
