
Subject: crisis in DC comics

Posted by rnavarro on Wed, 26 Jun 2013 04:26:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Message-ID:

Date: Tue, 15-Jan-85 21:35:32 EST

Article-I.D.: muddcs.304

Posted: Tue Jan 15 21:35:32 1985

Date-Received: Sat, 19-Jan-85 00:44:17 EST

Distribution: net

Organization: Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, CA

Lines: 39

Just in case DC isn't sure who to kill off and who not to kill off in crisis on infinite earths, I have a suggestion. Why not kill off the entire dc universe? It would be great! You could have every hero and villain band together in a vain attempt to stop the annihilator cloud. We would get a chance to see the reactions of superheroes who know they are going to die, but can't do anything about it. DC could really make this a fine series and really make secret wars look worse than everyone already knows it to be. Also DC will then have cornered the market on killing off characters. Other comic companies would be wimpy and only kill off one or two characters every now and then. Nobody will be able to top DC's killing job.

However, you might ask, how will DC bring all its characters (at least its important ones) back to life. Will they say it was all a dream? Will it turn out that the cloud really transported everyone to earth 1000000000000000000000001? No!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! DC will simply say that they have killed off all their characters and since they are all dead, DC is ceasing publication.

This move will make all those mediocre DC titles very valuable. The death of such beloved characters as Batman and Superman might even make the cover of TIME.

And, while everyone thinks DC is out of business, DC could be secretly using its resources to hire some of the best talent around and start creating a whole new line of DC comics. Every once in a while DC could publish a Superman, Batman, etc graphic novel telling about details of their lives before the annihilator cloud hit them in ways the comics code did not allow them back when Superman et al were just normal comics. Meanwhile, with its new line of comics, DC could really say "The New DC, there's no stopping us now!"

Credit where it is due: I got this idea from the owner of a sci-fi and comic book store whose store I visit. I thought this was an interesting scenario so put it on the net. I'd appreciate hearing what others think about this idea for the "New DC."

Robert Navarro
Harvey Mudd College

Subject: Re: crisis in DC comics
Posted by ma155abl on Wed, 03 Jul 2013 05:42:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Message-ID:
Date: Fri, 25-Jan-85 12:36:45 EST
Article-I.D.: sdcc7.1349
Posted: Fri Jan 25 12:36:45 1985
Date-Received: Mon, 28-Jan-85 05:00:16 EST
References:
Distribution: net
Organization: Arakkis
Lines: 51

[color=blue]> [/color]
[color=blue]> Just in case DC isn't sure who to kill off and who not to kill off[/color]
[color=blue]> in crisis on infinite earths, I have a suggestion. Why not kill off the [/color]
[color=blue]> entire dc universe? It would be great! You could have every hero and [/color]
[color=blue]> villain band together in a vain attempt to stop the anniliator cloud.[/color]
[color=blue]> We would get a chance to see the reactions of superheros who know[/color]
[color=blue]> they are going to die, but can't do anything about it. DC could really[/color]
[color=blue]> make this a fine series and really make secret wars look worse[/color]
[color=blue]> than everyone already knows it to be. Also DC will then have cornered [/color]
[color=blue]> the market on killing off characters. Other comic companies would be [/color]
[color=blue]> wimpy and only kill off one or two characters every now and then. [/color]
[color=blue]> Nobody will be able to top DC's killing job.[/color]
[color=blue]> However, you might ask, how will DC bring all its characters (at[/color]
[color=blue]> least its important ones) back to life. Will they say it was all a [/color]
[color=blue]> dream? Will in turn out that the cloud really transported everyone [/color]
[color=blue]> to earth 10000000000000000000001? No!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!![/color]
[color=blue]> DC will simply say that they have killed off all their characters [/color]
[color=blue]> and since they are all dead, DC is ceasing publication.[/color]
[color=blue]> THis move will all those mediorce DC titles very valuable.[/color]
[color=blue]> The death of such beloved characters as Batman and Superman might[/color]
[color=blue]> even make the cover of TIME. [/color]
[color=blue]> And, while everyone thinks DC is out of business, DC could be [/color]
[color=blue]> secretly using its resources to hire some of the best talent around[/color]
[color=blue]> and start creating a whole new line of DC comics. Every once in a while[/color]

[color=blue]> DC could publish a Superman, Batman, etc graphic novel telling about [/color]
[color=blue]> details of their lives before the aniliator cloud hit them in ways [/color]
[color=blue]> the comics code did not allow them back when Superman et al were [/color]
[color=blue]> just normal comics. Meanwhile, with its new line of comics,[/color]
[color=blue]> DC could really say "The New DC, there's no stopping us now!"[/color]
[color=blue]> [/color]
[color=blue]> [/color]
[color=blue]> Credit where it is due: I got this idea from the owner of a sci-fi and [/color]
[color=blue]> comic book store whose store I visit. I thought this was an interesting[/color]
[color=blue]> scenario so put in on the net. I'd appriciate hearing what others think[/color]
[color=blue]> about this idea for the "New DC."[/color]
[color=blue]> [/color]
[color=blue]> Robert Navarro[/color]
[color=blue]> Harvey Mudd College[/color]
[color=blue]> [/color]

 REPLACE THIS LINE WITH YOUR MESSAGE ***
 OH YEAH? FUCK OFF AND DIE THEN ***

Can you believe this guy - Robert Navarro?

Please refrain from posting silly articles on the net. (like I have)

-Nick