Does anybody know who did the cover of the paperback edition of Godstalk by P.C. Hodgell(sp)? It depicts the lead character standing on top of the inn where she has made her home in Tai-Tastigon. I have asked at various cons so far, with no luck. If there is a signature visible on the cover, I haven't been able to find it. I would like a print of the cover, so if you know who the artist is (or even if you know the artist) please tell me so I can look for it...or put me in touch with them.

In addition, does anyone know or have any rumors as to whether this book has/will have a sequel? It was the first book in a long time that I actually got lost in, and I would like some of the loose ends cleaned up and also some of the background elucidated. If anyone knows the author, Pass This Praise On! I hope (s)he writes more in this style and universe.

thanks for any info

Sure -- the book's publisher knows! Why not write to them?

If you don't know who published it, and don't have a copy of the book any more to check, your public library can probably help.
