Actually, I think that "Sunjammer" was the title that Clarke >wanted< to use for his story about a solar-sail race to the moon's orbit; however, the title had already been used by Winston P. Sanders (Saunders?) for a story in Analog, around about 1962 (it's the cover story for one of the "bedsheet-sized" issues from that time).

The operative phrase here is "I think". If I'm wrong, then mail me (not the newsgroup!!!), and I'll post a correcting message.
